Welcome dinner at Plzenska restaurant

Plzenska Restaurant in Prague is situated inside one of Europe's finest Art Nouveau buildings, the stunning Municipal House.

Plzenska Restaurant, named after the famous Czech beer Pilsner Urquell, presents classic Czech cuisine in a typical beer hall atmosphere.

As this is Municipal House, the interior of the restaurant is exquisite, with magnificent Art Nouveau features from the days of the First Republic, including ceramic mosaics, a golden clock and beautifully restored furniture by Sadílek. The decorative windows are all original.

The food at Plzenska is good, traditional Czech cuisine, prepared and presented with style. For a true taste of hearty Czech fare, we recommend the chef's specials like the Spicy Grilled Marinated Spare Ribs, the Roasted Pork Joint and the Bohemian Duck. The latter is served with typical red cabbage and dumplings.

There are other classic Czech dishes to choose from too, like smoked pork, sausages, goulash and fillet stroganoff, plus juicy wild boar medallions, brushed with cranberry sauce and served with potato pancakes - delicious!

3 hour private foodie tour

This weekday walk will usually start by sampling regional specialties in a local Greislerei: a modern take on a dry-goods mercantile and delicatessen that offers everything from gourmet mustards and pestos to honey and cordials. The small-batch products, often organic and always high quality, are sourced primarily from local farms and focus on traditional methods and husbandry. Among the succulent canned fruits, jars of pickled vegetables, and bottles of fragrant oils and vinegars, you'll experience the ingredients that elevate Austrian cooking to world-class heights.

Our next visits vary from tour to tour depending on our appetites. Stops may include: a local cheese specialty shop to sample a variety of cheeses, from silky and mild to full and complex; savory snacks or sausages at a local cafe; a bakery for hearty breads or pastries; or a street food stand, to relish hearty favorites like Leberkäse—a type of sausage popular throughout Europe's German-speaking nations. While walking the sidewalks of Vienna, we'll develop a sense of the role that gastronomy plays in the everyday lives of Austrians and of the important relationship between a city and its gastronomic traditions.

We'll finish our sensory tour with a sweet treat in a local pastry shop or cafe, getting a glimpse of the cafe culture for which Vienna is known. It is not uncommon for patrons to buy a Wiener Melange - coffee with milk foam - and then simply spend the whole day in the coffeehouse. As gathering places for Vienna's intelligentsia, cafes have historically served as a mise en scene for political, artistic, and social movements. As our walk draws to a close, we'll consider the importance of these intellectual gathering places and how they provide a tableaux of Viennese Gemütlichkeit - that famed coziness.

At the end of this walk, we'll have a greater understanding of how the contemporary food scene in the city converges with tradition and how culinary craftsmanship has shaped the way of life—and we will have indulged in true Viennese fashion.

October 1: Bratislava for 2 nights

2 hour private guided tour of Belvedere Museum with transportation and entrance fees included

Meet your private, fully-licensed guide and let him take you through the highlights of the Belvedere Palace. These highlights include the paintings by Klimt, Schiele and many other Austrian and international artists, but also include some architectural and decoration details of the palace itself.

Gustav Klimt and Egon Schiele being the two most famous 19th century Austrian painters, the majority of the focus will be on their masterpieces, such as Klimt's The Kiss and Judith and the Head of Holofernes, and Schiele's portraits. As you discover these major artworks, your guide will also introduce you to other fascinating curiosities and artists such as Franz Xaver Messerschmidt or Ferdinand Georg Waldmüller.

Private transfer from Vienna to Bratislava with a 2 hour stop at Liechtenstein Castle and 1 hour guided tour.

But the intervening period saw the castle reach its full impressive extent and has remained a Liechtenstein property ever since. Under Prince Johann II it was reconstructed as a museum exhibiting sculptures and valuable reliefs from his collection. The architects were scrupulous in preserving and enhancing the castle's original Romanesque fabric, with such success that today it's regarded as one of the rarest and best-preserved examples of a secular Romanesque building in Europe. And for once one can believe the architectural hype. Great beamed ceilings, thick original walls, delicately capped towers, the ornamental variety of its highly elevated interior spaces divided by restful softly rounded arches, the sensuous drama of the castle's pillared main staircase. The castle's chapel is a particular delight, a consecrated, still-functioning space built by Liechtenstein's founder in 1130, with special significance thanks to a red chalk image, or 'sanguine,' depicting the Crucifixion with Mary and St John.
